

Stephen Tindale

Associate Fellow, Centre for European Reform

Stephen Tindale is an associate fellow at the Centre for European Reform, working mainly on energy and climate policy but also on the EU budget.

He also runs the website Climate Answers, which tries to present information on climate issues in an accessible way, and to identify what should be supported rather than simply what should be opposed, as most NGOs do.

He is co-author, with Prashant Vaze, of the book ‘Repowering communities: Small scale solutions to large scale problems’ (Earthscan, June 2011), about the role that local government, co-operatives and community organisations play on energy supply and energy efficiency in Europe and North America.

Previous roles have included: Head of Communications and Public Affairs for RWE npower renewables; Executive Director of Greenpeace UK and Chairman of the Greenpeace European Unit; adviser to Environment Minister Michael Meacher; founder of IPPR Environment Group; adviser to Shadow Environment Secretary Chris Smith, diplomat at UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Bibliographie

Andrea Frontini , Annika Ahtonen , Clémentine d'Oultremont , Nadège Chambon , Sami Andoura , Stephen Tindale , Gonzalo Escribano , "EU resource management: what European external action strategy?", Policy Paper, Paris, Institut Jacques Delors, 04/03/2013

Stephen Tindale , "Saving emissions trading from irrelevance", Policy Paper, Paris, Institut Jacques Delors, 04/03/2013